

Financial Reset Plan

Generated 9/17/2026, 12:52:38 PM · All figures stay on this device

Current stage Crisis	Dependable income $2,450	Required spending $2,510	Monthly result -$1,220
--------------------------------	-------------------------------------	-------------------------------------	-----------------------------------

Current situation

Financial Survival Mode. rent is currently unpaid; required bills are overdue; dependable income is below survival expenses; immediate obligations exceed available cash. Liquid cash is $165; -$385 remains after entered immediate obligations.

Immediate priorities

- Protect rent and critical bills
- Pause unplanned discretionary spending
- Find a way to close the monthly income gap

Income and monthly spending

The plan uses dependable income of $2,450. Average expected income is $2,900 and projected current-month income is $2,500.

Known essential spending: $2,410. Flexible spending: $0. Discretionary spending: $1,085.

Emergency fund strategy

You currently have $0 in entered emergency savings. The current milestone is $250. Build this before treating optional debt payments or investing as higher priorities.

Weekly spending limits

- Restaurants: $143.19/week
- Dates & social activities: $92.38/week
- Subscriptions: $15.01/week

Debt strategy

Selected method: Debt avalanche. Required or legally sensitive payments remain protected. The current extra-payment target is Dental bill with a balance of $1,800.

Extra income rule

Above the dependable baseline: 70% to immediate shortfall / overdue obligations, 20% to emergency buffer, and 10% to discretionary.

Sinking fund targets

No sinking funds entered yet. Start with car repairs, tires, dental, or work tools.

30 / 60 / 90-day objectives

First 30 days

- Track every discretionary purchase
- Build the first $250 cash buffer
- Bring mandatory obligations current

By day 60

- Work toward the $1,000 emergency fund
- Begin the targeted debt payoff
- Fund predictable irregular expenses

By day 90

- Run the monthly plan consistently
- Reduce the target debt balance
- Review progress and update the dependable-income baseline

Long-term roadmap

Stabilize cash flow → build a starter emergency fund → clean up debt → hold one month of required expenses → build a 3–6 month emergency fund → increase retirement and long-term investing.

Financial rules

- Every dollar needs a job.
- Rent money is not spending money.
- Never spend based on income you hope to earn.
- Budget using dependable income.
- Separate needs from wants.
- Check your bank account before spending.
- If you cannot pay cash for entertainment, you cannot currently afford it.
- Unexpected expenses are often predictable categories with unpredictable timing.
- Higher income does not fix uncontrolled spending.
- When income rises, increase savings before lifestyle.
- A budget is permission to spend intentionally, not punishment.
- Protect yourself from the $300–$1,000 emergencies first.
- Pay yourself first when financially stable.
- Automate recurring financial decisions whenever possible.
- Review progress weekly, not only when something goes wrong.

10-minute weekly money check-in

- Check checking balance
- Check upcoming bills
- Compare spending against weekly limits
- Review restaurant and date spending
- Update debt balances
- Update emergency fund
- Check income expected during the next 14 days
- Check upcoming irregular expenses
- Decide whether discretionary spending needs to change

Final question: Am I financially better off than I was seven days ago?

Important: This plan is educational and does not replace individualized legal, tax, or investment advice.

